

Journey of registering via the Discover- NOW website

The North West London Health Research Register captures your consent through the Care Information Exchange (CIE) which gives you online access to your hospital health records and lets you share information with us.

On the Discover website you will click on the Join Today button

This will take you to a page which will give you 2 options as shown below;

If you are already registered to The Care Information Exchange you can click the Share button.

Alternatively, if you are a new user, you can register by clicking the 'Register with NHS login' button where you will be directed to the NHS log in page and follow the steps.

1. Get your NHS login
You will need an email address, a mobile phone number and a way to prove your identity – this can be a passport, a driving licence, or a European identity card. This step takes a little time but you only need to do it once.
2. You can give your consent to be added to the North West London Health Research Register so you can be contacted during the registration process for CIE.
Your account will allow you to view your information on your CIE record including appointments, letters, and test results.
3. Link your NHS login to your CIE account
This is the final step. Now you can log in to your CIE account using your NHS login username and password whenever you want to. You can also use the NHS app to access your CIE record if your GP practice is in North West London.

All participation is voluntary, and you are free to withdraw at any time, without giving any reason and without your legal rights being affected.
